Content/tasks

- Students can work individually, in pairs or in small groups
- If you haven't worked on different decades before, it is a good idea to show the students some small clips on for example music, movies or documentary from one or two decades that you choose. Let them brainstorm about their own knowledge on the chosen decade.
- Each student/group choose a decade they want to explore
- Which countries do you want to work with?
- What was it like to be young in this decade. Research different topics - it could be relationships, alcohol, smoking, fashion, music, sparetime, education, politics, big events
- After your research, you must compare to your own teenage life today.. What are the similarities and differences?
- Create a presentation where you show these comparisons and present it to the class
- Some students might have their presentation recorded and shown in public as dissemination.

- Laptop/computer to each student/group
